TIME'S CURE.

Mourn, Oh rejoicing heart,
The hours are flying,
Each one some treasure takes,
Each one some blossom breaks,
And leaves it dying;
The chill dark night draws near,
Thy sun will soon depart,
And leave thee sighing;
Then mourn, rejoicing heart,
The hours are flying!

Rejoice, Oh grieving heart,
The hours fly fast,
With each some sorrow dies,
With each some shadow flies,
Until at last
The red dawn in the East
Bids weary night depart,
And pain is past;
Rejoice, then, grieving heart,
The hours fly fast!

A LITTLE GOLD OWL.

"Do you know what a famous Russian beauty once wrote in her album? No? Let me tell you, then: 'The Frenchman understands best the art of talking love, the Italian of acting it, but the German rocks it to sleep, while the Pole ruins all.'"

"And the American?" pleaded a musical voice in the ear of the first speaker.

The lady made no immediate reply. The pair stood in the wings of a tiny amateur theatre in one of our large cities, and the drama of "Matrimony," in which they had acted, was over. Both were artists in that intense sentiment of excitement which stirs the ripples of private lite when theatricals and charades become the fashion. Augusta Bevan, tall, slender, and proud, had resumed her velvet walking-dress, and toyed with a tiny muff of pink satin, which was suspended about her neck by means of a ribbon. Capt. Hornblower, easy, graceful, and elegant, bent over her in an attitude of devotion which he had assumed, with the facility of a glove, for the past fifteen years, in the ball rooms of West Point, Saratoga, and Newport.

"Your muff seems to be a sort of fairy casket," pursued Capt. Hornblower, "Give me a keepsake from one of the pockets, I beg, in remembrance of the night."

"What shall it be?" retorted Augusta Beven, gaily.

She sought in the tiny pockets of perfumed and quilted satin, and drew forth a glittering object. This was a little gold owl, beautifully wrought, with ruby eyes and jeweled claws. When a spring was touched, a slender pencil-case slid out of the bird's head.

"Here is my gift," she said, gently and the gallant Captain understood that her words meant capitulation.

Was he glad or sorry? He received the little gold owl with effusive gratitude, and kissed the hand which bestowed the gift; but it was in the nature of this military butterfly to doubt, at the moment, if he had acted with unwise precipitation, if he had not sold himself too cheaply in the matrimonial market, and if Augusta Bevan was as great an heiress as she was reputed to be.

"My children remember the Scotch proverb. "Those who fish for minnows never catch trout," said Mr. Riddel, behind him.

Mr. Riddel, who invariably enacted the part of benevolent old man, proffered his snuff-box to Capt. Hornblower with his quizzical smile.

"We are called out again!" exclaimed Mrs. Trentham.

There was a patter of applause, and the four emerged before the footlights making their salutations in the most approved professional manner. On the stage stood Mrs. Trentham in a superb toilet, Augusta Bevan, Capt. Hornblower, and Mr. Riddel. Beyond the circle of footlights was a fashionable audience, where blended satin, gold, feathers, and lace resembling a parterre of flowers, while the little theater, built for Mrs. Trentham, made a charming background for smiling faces. Certainly the two actresses looked their best, for Capt. Hornblower, deeply versed in such craft, had made up their complexion with the aid of rouge and other cosmetics, moist purple worsted furnishing the requisite shadows beneath the eyes.

Said Mr. Riddel, as he conducted Miss Bevan home: "You will not forget my proverb, Augusta!—'Those who fish for minnows never catch trout.'"

She glanced askance at him, and frowned. Mr. Riddel, divested of gray wig and paternal bearing, was a dignified gentleman of forty years, lawyer, and manager of the great Bevan property.

"You have always warned me of fortune-hunters and worthless suitors since I left school," she exclaimed petulantly.

Mr. Riddel remained silent, but the blood mounted to his brow.

Said Mrs. Trentham to Capt. Hornblower, at a little supper table in a fashionable restaurant.

"Take another glass of champagne, Captain. Augusta Bevan really did very well to-night for a novice, except in the awkardness of her attitudes. Allow me to look at the little gold owl she gave you behind the scenes. Ah! I saw it all. A manager must be everywhere, you know."

Very piquant looked Mrs. Trentham as she spoke, coquette of as many seasons as her companion had posed for a beau, an arch sparkle in her eye, more than a suspicion of malice in her smile; for to see any man admire another woman pierced her vanity, if not her heart, and she could not rest until she had lured him away from his allegiance, or at least sown mischief in the path of possible lovers. Yet Mrs. Treutham was a most peculiar person and an acknowledged leader of society. Capt. Hornblower resisted for a time; but the enchantress was adroit, witty, flattering, and the supper good, and in the end he yielded.

The lady attached the little gold owl to her watch chain, and emerged in the streets at 2 o'clock in the morning. When she reached her own home the little gold owl was gone! She had lost it during the walk.

Next day Mrs. Trentham sailed up to Augusta Bevan, at a crowded kettle-drum, took both of her hands, and exclaimed: "Oh, my dear, I am so dreadfully sorry! I am always committing some folly. I do not deserve forgiveness. Capt. Hornblower gave me—I mean lent me—your little gold owl last night, and I actually lost it in the street."

The Sevres tea-cup fell from Augusta's fingers to the floor. Mr. Riddel and Capt. Hornblower stooped for the fragments simultaneously, thus knocking their heads together.

"She is disillusioned," thought Mr. Riddel,

"The game is lost," reflected the gallant warrior, with unfeigned regret. "Of course, no woman ever forgave that."

At 6 o'clock that morning a young Swiss maiden, by name Marie Hetzel had gone on an errand to the market for her mistress. Marie was 16, with a round brown face framed in a fringed cap, and carried a basket on her arm. Her foot struck against a small object; she stooped, and found a little gold owl on the curbstone.

"Himmel!" exclaimed Marie, and sped with her treasure to the lager beer saloon where Fritz, her lover, was employed as waiter.

Fritz happened to be polishing the row of little tables placed in bowers of evergreen. He was a prudent youth of 19, with blonde hair and hard blue eyes. He examined the trinket and put it in his pocket. The gold owl would look very pretty suspended about Marie's throat, even as Roman women rejoice in their hair-pins and chains, or the Genoese in their filigree ear-rings; but money also could be made out of it—money to add to frugal savings wherewith to return to beloved Canton Berne as man and wife, and buy a modest farm.

Marie shed a few tears of feminine vanity, while yielding to logical argument, and trudged home with her basket.

Fritz sought a little den of a shop in an obscure quarter, and sold the gold owl to a Jew, after much haggling, for $5. which sum he consigned to a savings bank. Now, indeed, was the owl lost, hopelessly lost, for it had disappeared in the back shop of a wretched quarter, instead of reposing in the pocket of Miss Bevan's pink satin muff. It happened that the owl had never met with greater appreciation, however. The ruby eyes glowed like flames, while the golden plumage became luminous, and the ornament was passed from one dusky hand to another.

Finally the Jew took the trinket to a fashionable jeweler, celebrated for skillful workmanship in metals, and sold it for a considerable sum, Mr. Riddel, walking down town one morning, paused suddenly before the jeweler's window, He saw a little gold owl suspended by a hook, and radiant in the sunshine. He fancied the bird of wisdom actually winked at him in recognition. He entered the place and bought it promptly.

Augusta Bevan, pale, thoughtful, and with a new tenderness in her bearing, received back the little golden owl. "I have been thinking of so many things of late," she said, softly, placing her hand within the arm of this faithful friend. "I even remember your proverb; 'Those who fish for minnows never catch trout.'"

Mrs. Trentham tapped Capt. Hornblower on the arm with her fan at a reception where the lady was resplendent in Worth toilet of black satin and old gold. "Mr. Riddel and Augusta Bevan are engaged," she said, "I always knew it would be a match yet. Their property joins, you know, and water does flow to water in that way in our wicked world. Besides, he is really the only man worthy of Augusta."

Capt. Hornblower went his way, having been ordered to a fort in Montana Territory, His amiability was not increased by the discovery that his hair was turning gray, and that he experienced a twinge of rheumatism in his right knee.

SOFT SOAP.—Three quarters of a pound of washing soda and a pound of brown soap cut in small pieces; put them in a large stone jar on the back of the range, when the range is not very hot, and pour over it a pailful of cold water; stir it once in a while, and after some hours, when thoroughly dissolved, put it away to cool. It forms a sort of jelly, and is excellent to remove grease on floors or shelves,

A Noted Outlaw.

John Alfred Slade, the noted outlaw and highwayman, used to wear a beaded and gaudily colored buckskin suit which cost $750. Slade's exploits are well remembered by all the old-time settlers in the West. At one time he became involved in a difficulty with a Frenchman named Jules, an Indian trader, who had spent the greater part of his life among the Indians of the plains.

Upon the establishment of the overland line of coaches to California Jules was much incensed, as he claimed it was an innovation upon the rights of the Indians and the traders and would bring too many whites upon the plains. He waged incessant war upon the overland line, with the aid of Indians and half-breeds, by running off stock and committing other depredations, which were continued without restraint until John Alfred Slade appeared upon the scene as a division agent from Fort Kearney west. This man was a refugee from justice, having killed a man in his native county of Clinton, Ill. Soon after taking charge of the division, Slade became the terror of the road, and his bold and reckless daring involved him in numerous quarrels with stock thieves and others. His quick aim and steady nerve sent many a desperado to a bloody grave; in fact, he sought quarrels, and to use the parlance of the times, "always got his man." A deadly feud existed between Jules and Slade, and the former resolved on his (Slade's) death. Knowing that on a certain day Slade would come down the road upon the overland coach, Jules laid for him at the station, and as the former alighted from the coach, fired upon him with his gun, both barrels of which took effect, and as his enemy lay writhing upon the earth, poured the contents of his dragoon pistol into his body. Then mounting a horse, Jules rode into the mountains, fearing the vengeance of Slade's friends. Strange and unaccountable as it may seem, Slade was found to be alive and carried into the station, and though lingering upon the point of death for months, he recovered from his wounds and laid his plans for the capture of his enemy, who was finally hunted down and taken to Bovey's Station. The names of the captors of Jules were Nelson Vaughn, John Fry, and another man, who is now a resident of Montana. These three persons having secured Jules, sent a messenger for Slade, and the two bloody men met again face to face; this time, however, Slade had the drop, being heavily armed and with three armed captors of Jules at his back. Well knowing his doom was sealed, Jules stood up and demanded half a chance for his life. "You gave me no show," retorted Slade, "but take this and defend yourself," handing the Frenchman a pistol which he knew would not revolve—and the next instant sent a ball through the forehead of Jules near the top of the skull, who reeled and fell. Slade and his party then retired to the next room to take a drink, but upon returning found that the prostrated Frenchman was gone. Horses were mounted and the country scoured to no effect; but upon returning to the station the wounded Jules was found in an outhouse covered with hay. He was led out and shot through the mouth, and again at the base of the right ear, which finished the job. Vaughn cut off the ears of the dead man and gave one to Slade, reserving the other. The two worthies then came to Denver with these bloody trophies in their pockets, and wore them out at the different bars on a prolonged spree, in slapping them on the counter as a tender for payment of drinks.

In Rose-Water.

A stranger with white long hair, a white coat, a white hat with a crape band and other evidences of lunacy, entered a restaurant and said to the proprietor:

"Sir, let me explain in advance that I am a singular man."

"All right, sir. A singular man's order is as good as any one else's.

"I want six oysters on the half-shell—on the left-hand half, if you please."

The oysters were opened and placed before him, and when he had devoured them he said:

"Now take six oysters, run them through a clothes-ringer to remove the dampness, and fry them for me in olive oil."

This order was also filled, when he called for a cup of salt and water, added milk and sugar and drank it down and asked for his bill.

"I also desire to explain in advance that I am a singular man," replied the proprietor. "Your bill is $2."

"Impossible!"

"Just $2, sir."

"But that is monstrous."

"Perhaps it seems high, but that's my singular way of charging for singular lunches."

"I'll never pay it!"

"Then I'll sadden your heart!"

The sad proceedings were about to begin when the long-haired man forked over and walked out. The lesson seemed to sink deep into his heart, for he halted at a fruit stand, and, without any explanations in advance, paid the usual price for a banana and carried it off without asking the seller to dip the ends in rose-water.

Safety in Railroad Travel.

Of the 375,000,000 persons annually carried over the railroads of the United States, about 1800 meet with injuries more or less severe, while 460 are killed. Of the above numbers, 800 of those injured and 200 of the killed may be charged to causes for which the railroad companies are to a greater or less degree responsible, while the rest of the casualties are due to the carelessness of the passengers themselves. For every railroad passenger, therefore, who is killed in the United States, over 800,000 are carried safely; while for every passenger for whose death the railroad companies are accountable, nearly 2,000,000 are safely transported. For every railroad passenger who is in any way injured, 200,000 are safely carried; while for every passenger injured by causes for which the companies are responsible, nearly 500,000 are transported without accident. In Massachusetts—where the records have been more carefully and more systematically kept for the past ten years than in any other part of the country—the number of passengers carried in that time was, in round numbers, 400,000,000, of which number 581 were injured, 122 of them fatally. Of the whole number 250 were injured from causes beyond their own control, the remainder suffering from their own lack of care. Thus, for every passenger in any way injured 688,000 were safely carried, while for every passenger killed 3,000,000 in round numbers were transported without injury. If we consider only those who were killed or injured from causes over which they themselves had no control, the results are somewhat different. Thus, in Massachusetts, during the nine years from 1871 to 1879, the number of passengers carried was 303,000,000, of which number fifty-one were killed by causes beyond their own control. For every person killed, therefore, 6,000,000 were safely carried, As the average distance traveled by each person was about fifteen miles, the total distance traveled by all before death happened to any one was 90,000,000 miles. In other words, a passenger with average good luck would travel at the rate of sixty miles an hour for ten hours a day, for 306 days in a year, for 500 years, or he would go 3600 times around the earth before getting killed.

Concerning Mirrors.

The record of patents granted during the last 200 years throws a curious light upon the progress of the manufacture of mirrors. Up to that time the Venetians had a monopoly of the business, but in 1634 the French began to compete, and, competing in the art, beat all others from the field, and improved so rapidly that in another fifty years, in 1684, a glass plate was cast in Paris which was 18 inches long and 50 broad. The supremecy then gained continues to our day of three classes of mirrors supplied to the American market—the French, the German, and those of home manufacture. Those of France are greatly preferable. The latter are imported pure, to be silvered here upon arrival, while the German is imported ready, and that of home manufacture is comparatively little in demand. American looking-glasses are mostly manufactured at Baltimore, French mirror plates are mainly prepared in the suburbs of Paris, while the seat of the German manufactories is in Bavaria. Imported glasses, with rare exception in the case of special orders, are framed in this country, a very large majority in New York city itself. The size of the plates as delivered to the dealers differs a good deal. Those from Germany run from 7 by 9 inches up to 48 by 20 and 40 by 26; French glass from 10 by 8 all in even inches up to 160 by 84. The beveled glass which is so fashionable to-day is prepared after its arrival, being shipped in plain, even sheets.

A Pleasant Experiment with Salt.

Do you want to grow salt and at the same time have an interesting, handsome ornament? The preceeding is a novel chemical experiment that may be tried by any one. Put in a goblet one tablespoonful of salt and one spoonful of bluing; fill the goblet one-third full of water, and set it in a position where it will have plenty of warmth and sunlight. In a little while sparkling crystals will commence forming on the outside of the glass, and it is both a novel and interesting sight to watch it gradually growing day by day until the outside of our goblet will be entirely covered over with beautiful white crystals. Another variation of this beautiful experiment would be to take a goblet with the base broken off and fasten it in the center of a thin piece of board, which may be round, square or oblong. After the crystals have formed on the glass, set it on a tiny wall bracket, and place a bright holiday or birthday card in front of it; this will hide the base, on which no crystals will form. After this is done fill the goblet with flowers or dried grasses, and you will have a vase which will cost comparatively little and in reality adds to the bric-a-brac of a room.

A Royal Hussar.

At the review of the Fifth German Army Corps, near Breslau, the Crown Princess of Germany in her Hussar uniform rode past at the head of the splendid regiment of Hussars of which she is honorary colonel. She wore the little hussar cap, with its long plume, and the black jacket, with white braid, from which the corps is called the Black Hussars. A short habit took the place of the manly garments of the other officers, and, instead of the sword, the Princess carried her riding-whip sword-wise. Like all other commanding officers, she took her place at the right side of the Emperor as her regiment filed past.

BROWN BETTY.—Put a layer of sweetened apple sauce in a buttered dish, add a few lumps of butter, then a layer of cracker crumbs, sprinkled with a little cinnamon, then a layer of sauce, etc., making the last a layer of crumbs; bake in oven, and eat hot, with cold sweetened cream,

The Doctor's Story.

It was Christmas Eve, and a dreary night it was, dismal enough, with drifting, sleet and snow to drive away all thoughts of pleasure, except to those who were comfortably gathered around their own firesides. I was just closing my office-shutters, and preparing to leave for home, when there came a loud ringing at the bell, and a man rushed in, who stated, in almost unintelligible language, from the breathless state that he was in, that a man had nearly murdered himself at the Chester House, and that I was wanted immediately. Taking my case of instruments in my hand, I buttoned my coat tight around me and hurried out into the storm, inwardly wishing that some other physician had been called, so I could have spent my batchelor Christmas Eve in peace.

The remembrance that the poor man was probably lying at the point of death soon drove all such thoughts from my head, and I hurried on and soon reached the hotel. I was shown immediately to the room of the wounded man and found him lying on the bed just breathing, and such a sight as would make a man's blood run cold. The landlord said he was a stranger, who had been stopping at the house but a short time, and the night before he had come in intoxicated, and gone to his room. In the morning when the girl came to the room she had found the door locked on the inside, and no one answered to her knock. In the afternoon his door was tried again, with no better success, and when evening came, and there were no signs of any one moving in his room, they burst open the door, and found the occupant lying on the floor in such a state as made them start back with horror. He had tried to cut his throat, but his hand was so unsteady that he had only succeeded in horribly mutilating himself.

He had fallen on the floor, his head was in such a position that the blood from the wound in his neck had flowed over his face, making a ghastly spectacle. Finding that he still lived, they placed him on the bed, and sent for me and when I arrived he was just breathing. Had it not been for the congealing of the blood on the wound, the man could never have lived half the time he did, and it was very evident from the faint and irregular beating of his pulse that he could not possibly last longer than a few hours. I sewed up and bandaged the wound, and gave him a strong stimulant, and in a short time he began to show signs of returning consciousness. As soon as his senses returned he called me to his bedside, and in a feeble voice asked me if I thought he would live. I told him that there was no knowing, but he might, though in all human probability, he could not possibly survive till morning.

Contrary to my expectation, for I feared I had done wrong in speaking so plainly, he seemed pleased and told me to sit down by his bedside, as he had a long story to tell me, and if he could but live and have strength to finish it, it would relieve his mind of a burden that had borne down upon him for many a weary year, and he could die happy. Sending all from the room, I sat down beside him to listen to the story of his life, for such it proved to be, and I will now repeat it, only in my own language, and supplying one or two facts with regard to the personal appearance and social standing that came out after it was known who he was.

His name he said was Boyden—John Boyden—and he was born in Boston. His father was a wealthy ship-builder, also owning several ships, trading between this port and several cities in Europe, daily adding to his large fortune, to which John was the only heir. At eighteen he entered college, and his handsome face, fine form, and plenty of money always at command, made him a pet of the class. At twenty-two he started with a party of wealthy young men for Europe. Everything that money could buy was theirs; they travelled in the most expensive manner, and had the best of everything. At Baden they visited, as all do, the gambling rooms, and here it was that Boyden acquired that taste for play that ruined him.

Every day and night found him at the tables, and always fortunate. But the princely way in which he lived, fairly throwing away money, did not leave him much on hand, when one of his friends induced him to leave Baden, and both of them continued their travels. They remained in Europe two years, and, returning to America, Boyden was taken into partnership with his father, and settled down as a business man. The highest society was open to him, and no entertainment, however elegant and fashionable, was complete without the presence of the rich and handsome John Boyden.

A year passed in this way, when the old fever of travel and excitement came over him, and as one of their ships was then about to sail for Cuba, he resolved to go in her. The business acquaintance of the firm with some of the largest houses of Cuba gave him sufficient introduction to its best society. It was at a grand fete at the house of one of the best families that Boyden met a young Cuban lady, with whom he became desperately in love. The attachment was mutual, and though he intended to stay in Cuba but a short time, he lingered along until four months had passed away, and found him still loth to return to home and business. Having obtained the consent of her father, it was decided that he should return home first, to prepare for her reception and the wedding, and she and her father were to follow on the next steamer. Everything passed off as intended, the family were delighted at their son's choice, and gave both her and her father a hearty welcome. The wedding took place a short time after this arrival, and the bride's father again returned to Cuba, though not until Mr. and Mrs. Boyden, senior, had promised to visit him at his home. An elegant mansion had been prepared near the homestead for the reception of the newly married couple, who now took possession of it.

For a long time the attractions of his new home kept Boyden away from his former associates and pleasures; but at last the old love of gambling came over him, and he was less frequently at home evenings and more at his club. One night, about a year after they had been married, he went as usual to the gambling rooms of the club, and commenced playing with a young man, a member, who had been admitted on account of his wealth. They played heavily, John winning steadily from the first, until his opponent, maddened at his ill luck, and the loss of a large sum of money accused Boyden of cheating.

The words had scarcely passed his lips when a pistol ball closed them forever. Everyone rushed forward to the wounded man, thus giving Boyden a good chance to escape unnoticed, which he did, and rushing to the depot saw a train just leaving, and jumped aboard, bound he knew not whither. Riding, till the train reached its destination, he found himself in a city some ninety miles from home He stayed there during the day, shaving his beard and moustache, and otherwise disguising himself, and the next day took steamer for California. Here he engaged in every kind of low dissipation, trying in vain to drive away the remembrance of his former life, and to forget the act that caused him to fly from home. He did not dare to read the papers, fearing he should read something regarding himself. A common gambler, and with his usual good luck, there was no lack of money to carry on his life of debauchery. Drink, play and dissipate as he might, he could not still his conscience, and at last, resolved to travel, hoping in vain to leave his sin behind him. He went to England and France, visiting those scenes he remembered to have seen first when full of life and hope. No gambling place, however low, but knew his face, and he soon became the terror of all professionals, and the wonder of unlucky amateurs.

One day in Paris, some ten years after he had left home, he was eating his dinner at a cafe, when he noticed an American paper lying near, and thought he saw his old name (he had assumed one while away), in print, and taking it up, he read:

Died—"In this city, Mary, the wife of Francis Boyden."

The paper dropped from his hands, and the man who had left his home ten years ago in the prime of life, now bent down and grown prematurely old by dissipation, bent his head upon his hands, and wept as he had not done since a little child. Resolved that he would end his days in the land of his birth, he sailed for America, and arriving, went straight to his native city. Here, by adroit questionings, he managed to obtain unsuspected, the history of his family since he had left them.

His father had been so shocked when the news was brought to him of the act his son had committed that his mind was unsettled from that day. His business, for want of his old tact and judgment, became involved, and he finally failed so badly that, after settling with his creditors, there was scarcely enough left for the family to live upon. This final blow made him totally insane, so that, from the time of his failure until his death, which occurred about two years after he had been an inmate of an insane asylum, his mother had lived upon what had been saved from the wreck of her husband's fortune, a broken-hearted woman whose only hope was in the hereafter, and she had died a short time before, as he had seen in the paper. His wife had returned to her former home, and after waiting five years for his return, or any news of his whereabouts, had given him up for dead, and married a wealthy Cuban, with whom she was then living, happy in the possession of a kind husband and one lovely child. Each new particular of the dreadful story only added to the weight of remorse that bore down upon the conscience-stricken man. After first hearing the truth he had wandered about the streets, always intoxicated in his endeavor to silence the still small voice that was continually repeating.

"You did it! You did it!"

Crazed at last by the terrible visions of the past, that were continually haunting him, he had resolved upon taking his own life, but being as usual intoxicated, he had succeeded only to the extent mentioned. The poor wretch had hardly strength enough to finish the sad story ere he breathed his last. The next day, when his death appeared in the newspapers, and it became known who he was, hundreds who had known him in his pride, came and begged to see his face, but humanity demanded that he should not thus be made a show of, and he was buried by the side of his father and mother, the stone bearing the simple inscription, "John Boyden."

Plants When Traveling.

Many of our readers in their sojournings by the mountain will desire to carry home some floral relics of pleasant days, and by the following simple method they can be easily transported: All that you will need is a piece of cotton cloth, colored or white as you prefer. Take up the plants so as to leave some soil about their roots, and if they are thoroughly wetted before removal the earth will cling tightly to them and keep them from wilting. Tear off a strip of the cotton and wrap it closely around the earth and roots, leaving the branches exposed. Cover with half a dozen thicknesses of the cotton and pin it tightly in place, or sew the ends together. Put the roots and cotton into a dish of water over night. Next morning wrap up in dry cloth, and you can pack the plant in your trunk or in a basket where it will go safely without any injury to its roots, and if they are wrapped up in a cloth for a week or ten days the plants will come out fresh and fair. Seaside and mountain ferns can be transported in this manner without and injury to them. Also all kinds of garden and house plants. When unpacked, place the roots, still in the cotton, into a little warm water, and give them a good bate for an hour or more, and then transplan them at nightfall, and shade for a few day from the hot sun, and keep well watery nightly.

Lake Constance.

The shrinkage of Lake Constance, in Switzerland, owing to the extraordinary dryness of the past winter, has brought to light many interesting relics. Among them there are bone and flint implements, harpoons, poltery, many specimens of which are intact, clubs, baskets, arrows, field tools, and animal remains. Among the latter are skeletons of the bear, the bison, and the moor-hen. The discovery also includes a considerable quantity of oats and wheat in a good state of preservation, and a remarkably perfect and artistically executed stag horn harpoon. The relics have all been removed to Frauenfeld, and added to the collection of the local historical and natural history society which is now the richest in lacustrine objects in the Helvetic Confederation.

"HOME, SWEET HOME."—In the spring of 1863 two great armies were encamped on either side of the Rappahanock river, one dressed in blue and the other in gray. As the twilight fell, the bands on the Union side began to play "The Star Spangled Banner" and "Rally Round the flag," and that challenge of music was taken up on the other side, and they responded with "The Bonnie Blue Flag" and "Away Down in Dixie." It was borne in upon the soul of a single soldier in one of these bands of music to begin a sweeter and more tender air, and slowy as he played it they joined in a sort of chorus of all the instruments upon the Union side until finally a great and mighty chorus swelled up and down the army—"Home, Sweet Home." When they had finished there was no challenge yonder, for every band upon that further shore had taken up the lovely air so attuned to all that is holiest and dearest, and one great chorus of the two great hosts went up to God; and when they had finished, from the boys in gray came a challenge, "Three cheers for home!" and as they went resounding through the skies from both sides of the river, "something upon the soldiers' cheeks washed off the stains of powder."—*N. A GREAT BATTLE
AND A
GLORIOUS VICTORY!

A BIG DEMOCRATIC WAVE SWEEPS OVER THE COUNTRY.

Pattison Governor!

Boss Rule Doomed!

The Whole Democratic State and County Tickets Elected by Large Majorities.

NEW YORK AND MASSACHUSETTS ELECT DEMOCRATIC GOVERNORS!

The Democracy Carry Thirty-Three States.

A DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS.

Large Majority for Pattison.

Returns from Philadelphia so far are scattering and indicate republican gains, but are not sufficient to overcome the rest of the state nor to prevent a large majority for Mr. Pattison.

W. U. HENSEL.

PHILADELPHIA, November 7.—Latest returns indicate a majority of 10,000 for Beaver in the city at 40,000 for Pattison outside of the city, making his majority in the state 30,000.

NEW YORK.

Returns indicate that Cleveland will come down to Harlem river with from 20,000 to 25 000 majority.

Kings county will give Cleveland 25 000 majority. Spriggs, democrat is elected to congress in the Oneida district. Cleveland's majority in the city will be 75,000.

Scattering returns from various parts of the state show uniform and heavy gains for the democrats, apparently making Cleveland's majority almost fabulous. Howard Carroll seems to be running ahead but is probably swamped with the rest of the ticket.

Three hundred and ninety three election districts out of 688 give Cleveland 40,165 majority.

MASSACHUSETTS.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—The Massachusetts republicans concede Butler's election, but claim the legislature and the balance of the State ticket. The democrats claim three congressmen, a gain of two.

W. U. HENSEL.

CONNECTICUT.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Connecticut has elected a democratic governor and has gained two congressmen. HENSEL.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 7.—Private advices indicate the election of Edgerly Dean for Governor.

LATEST.

The democratic state ticket in this state is elected by enormous pluralities, which range from 36,000 to 42,000. The lower house of the legislature is also democratic, while the republican majority in the senate has been reduced. Thirteen of the twenty-eight congressmen are democratic.

New York swells her majority to the enormous figure of 175,000. Indiana, Michigan, California, Nevada, Colorado, Kansas Connecticut New Jersey and Massachusetts have all gone democratic. The result is far beyond the highest hope,

THE NEWSPAPER.—The strong attachment of subscribers to well conducted newspapers is fully confimed by publishers. "Stop my paper," words of dread to beginners in business, lose their terror after a paper has been established a number of years. So long as it pursues a just, honorable and judicious course, meeting the wants of its customers in all respects, the ties of friendship between sub scribers and the paper are as hard to break by an outside third party as the link which binds old friends in business or social life. Occasional defects and errors in a newspaper are overlooked by those who have become attached to it through its perusal for years. They sometimes become dissatisfied with it on account of something which has slipped into its columns and may stop taking it, but the absence of the familiar sheet at their homes and offices for a few week becomes an insupportable privation, they hasten to take it again and possibly apologize for having stopped. No friendship on earth is more constant than that contracted by a reader for a journal that makes an honest and earnest effort to merit its continual support. Hence a conscientiously conducted paper becomes a favorite in the family.—N. Y. Proof Sheet.

The gallows, the penitentiary, the jail, are the shame of our civilization, and the society that neglects its children and lets them grow up in ignorance and vice is responsible for the gallows, the penitentiary and the jail. Society ignores the child of poverty or misfortune; friendless anb guileless, he is left to work his way through our unfeeling world. He is lured into the haunts of vice, learns to steal, to drink, to murder. Then outraged society seizes him, jails him, hangs him. The neglected, abandoned child becomes the wicked outlaw for whom prisons and scaffolds are built. How much better and more creditable to our Christianity and civilization would it be if the millions that are annually spent in watching, prosecuting, punishing and feeding criminals were spent in looking after and caring for the unfortunate outcast from whom the criminal class mainly comes, and for whom nobody seems to care.—Ex.

The other Sunday, Rev. J. G. Anspach, of Mifflinburg, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation at Union church, in Buffalo township. Mr. A. is now 82 years of age, and 52 of them he has spent in the work of the Master. A correspondent of the Journal gives the following record of the services of this venerable divine: "When he first came into this valley (in the year 1831) he preached regulary in the following churches: Lewisburg, Mifflinburg, Laurelton, White Deer, and Dreisbach, and supplied the church at Milton one year, and the New Berlin church for over 19 years, has preached since 1834 in the Ray church above Mifflinburg, and at the Union over 42 years, and at the White Deer for 50 years. He built 8 churches—at Lewisburg 2, at Dreisbach, 1 at the Union and 1 at Ray's (and is now building the 2d church there) 1 at Mifflinburg and one at White Deer. From April 1, 1831, to Oct. 15, 1882 he preached 7591 regular sermons, and 1569 funeral sermons, making in all 8760 sermons preached by him. Baptized 3091 children, 511 adults, 3932 in all. Confirmed 2673 persons. Married 947 couples; assisted in laying corner stones and dedicating 26 churches."

This is election week and we are altogether too busy to write out our regular Fall Advertisement. But next week this column will contain what the JOURNAL STORE has to say to its patrons & friends.

FIRST GOODS

FOR THE

FALL SEASON FOR 1882.

We have now what we think the Largest and Most Attractive Stock of ever brought to this city and are now better prepared to show you than we ever were before, owing to the fifty-foot extension put to our store. It gives us much more room to show our goods, more satisfactory to ourselves and to our customers. Now we don't want to annoy you with a long advertisement, but will give you some few points worth knowing and it will be worth your time which in Lock Haven to call and see our goods, whether you wish to buy or not.

DRESSGOODS.

In this we can safely say that there never was such a stock brought to this city as we have now to show you; as fine as any house in Philadelphia. The assortment is not quite so large, this we will admit, but we have the new things and that is all we want.

PLUSHES AND VELVETS

Are the rage this Fall and they are indeed very pretty. We have them in all the new shades and as low in price as you will find them in Philadelphia or New York.

Brocade Velvets in all shades,

Brocade Plushes in all shades,

Stripe Velvets in all shades,

Stripe Satin Ottoman.

Plain atin Ottoman.

EMBROIDERED DRESSES FROM $25 TO $42.

Together with these we have Plain Plushes. Plain Colored Velvets, $1.25 and $2.50. Back Velvets, $1.25, $2.50, $3.50, $4.25 and $5.00. Together with all these fine goods we have Plain Suitings, Stripe Suitings, Plain Flannel Suitings, with Braids in all colors to match. We will say again we can certainly show you a fine line of goods and can suit any customer from the lowest to the very best goods in the market; all we ask is an examination. Now, we have already taken up considerable space for our DRESS GOODS; we have not much room to say much about other goods, but we have them and at prices that are as low as any one can possibly sell them, and the advantage you have by buying from us, you will have so much more to select from. DEPARTMENTS

Have never been so well stocked as this season. We bought these goods in large quantities, as last Winter, you know, was not very cold and we have every reason to believe that this will be a severe one. In view of this we bought largely in these goods and can sell you better goods for less money than any other house in the city. Particular attention is called to a RED TWILL FLANNEL, extra heavy, at 37½ cts. A Ladies' Scarlet Vest $1 75. Gents Scarlet Shirt and Drawers 98cts. a piece. Gents' Scarlet Shirts and Drawers $1.75 a piece, and the big drive in a

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, NOV. 9., 1882.

DEININGER & BUMILLER,
Editors and Proprietors.

Local Department.

—The Millheim B. & L. Association meets next Monday evening.

—A good town property at private sale. Inquire at this office. tf.

—President Arthur has by proclamation designated Thursday, November 30th as a day of national thanksgiving.

—All kinds of leather sold and all kinds of hides bought, by A. J. Harter at Musser's Tannery, Millheim, Pa. tf

—Mr. Michael S. Fiedler gives notice in another column that he is the executor of the estate of the late John Hess, deceased.

—A good girl wanted to do general housework. Wages paid or privelege given to attend school. Apply at this office.

—Mr. Louis Haas, the well-known Roopsburg brewer, departed this life, Friday morning, the 27th of October, aged 62 years.

—We learn incidentally that Mr. Wm. Wolf, residing on Mrs. Forster's farm, Penn township, expects to emigrate to Illinois next spring.

—Prof. Wolf will hold a special examination of teachers at the Court House, Bellefonte, next Saturday, beginning at 9 A. M.

—The new Retormed Church in Bellefonte, which was debicated the other Sunday, is said to be the finest building of its kind in Centre county.

—Reuben Grimm, administrator of Daniel Grimm, deceased, will sell a valuable lot with smithy thereon erected, in Madisonburg, on Saturday the 18th instant.

—Have any of our farmer patrons a few bushels of apples to spare for the poor printer? "Whoever giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord"—or words to that effect.

—An overloaded car on the down train ran off the track near Weiker Run on Monday morning, and it was nearly night when the wreck was adjusted. Nobody hurt.

—Stam is putting out goods with a rush at actual closing-out cost prices—to make room for the new clothing and merchant tailoring establishment that will be coming along about the first of January.

—The election on Tuesday passed off very decently and orderly, here. There was no quarrelling nor violent argumentation and very little if any drunkenness. Much quiet electioneering was done and a very full vote polled.

—The estate of John D. Foote still has a number of Keystone Cultivators on hand which will be sold out cheap and upon reasonable terms. Apply to

—If the winter just ahead of us will prove nearly as cold as is predicted we will need from 15 to 20 cords of wood to supply two families. Now, whoever of our patrons has more wood than cash may bring wood, the sooner the better, until we "holler" enough. tf.

NEW OYSTER SALOON.—D. I. Brown has opened rooms in his dwelling where ladies and gentlemen will be served with the best and freshest oysters done up in the every form and best style. Families supplied by the quart or gallon. A share of patronage respectfully solicited. 2t

—Mr. A. S. Ruhl, of Rockford, Ill., a native Millheim boy, paid the old home a flying visit on Monday. He was happy as a May bird among the many friends of "Auld Lang Sayne", but his stay was entirely too short for anything like satisfaction. He promised however to call again.

—We have no hesitation to pronounce the new Baker House at Lewisburg, first class in every respect. Everything is bright and new, both the building and furniture, and all in excellent style and taste. The fare is all that could be desired, while the gentlemanly proprietor, Mr. W. N. Baker, understands exactly how to treat his guests and make them comfortable.

Inventors and Patentees

should send for instructions, reasonable terms, references, &c., to Edson Brothers, Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C. who furnish the same without charge. Edson Brothers is a well known and successful firm of large experience, having been established in 1866. tf

—The election is over and people will again be obliged to give due attention to the ordinary duties and wants of life, chief among which are the ever-recurring questions of what to eat and what to wear. Fortunately the latter question can be solved easily enough. Lewin, the boss clothier, can help you out of that trouble nicely. For a small amount of cash he will rig you out from head to foot in best style. His overcoats especially are indeed really fine and very cheap. You may need one any day, winter is squarely before your door. Don't delay to call on Lewin for good and cheap clothing. 2t

—The St. Elmo Hotel, Philadelphia, is fast growing into popularity and has a large and increasing trade. Its central location, excellent management and moderate rates commend themselves alike to business men and visitors. The arrangements, accommodations and treatment are strictly first-class while the rates are lower than at other hotels of its class. We advise our patrons who have occasion to visit Philadelphia to stop at the St. Elmo.

—The monthly receipts of the Lutheran Ladies' Mite Society on Monday evening amounted to $7.80 cents. This society has grown in numbers and interest ever since its organization nearly a year ago, and it is now an important auxiliary to the congregation. We think every live congregation should have a society of this kind. It fosters sociality and benevolence better, perhaps, than any other agency. Give the ladies but a fair chance and they will do more good than the same number of men, for they are more liberal, more sympathetic and generally more pious and devoted. God bless and prosper the ladies in their noble work.

We understand that the society contemplates holding a festival in the near future.

SETTLEMENT NOTICE.—All persons knowing themselves indebted to or who have unsettled accounts with the estate of John D. Foote, dec'd, will save themselves expenses and trouble by calling with the undersigned and settling up. I will remain at my home at Aaronsburg for four successive Saturdays next ensuig to accommodate those interested.

—On Wednesday evening our young Democracy had a grand jollification over the result of the election. A magnificent flag with the electrifying words attached "Pattison Elected," was flung to the breeze; anvils were loaded and discharged that shook the very earth; the band discoursed its best patriotic airs; a drum corps of four tenor and one bass drum made the welkin ring, while a large bonfire on the public crossing gave a brilliant, romantic light to the happy scene. Hundreds of people were gathered together. Old men, and ladies—yes indeed, the ladies, too where there. The Millheim boys were there, of course they were, to make a fuss and racket as only Millheim boys can. The "Spirit of '76" ran wild.

Hon. W. K. Alexander closed the exercises with a grand bifalitin spread eagle speech.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from active practice having had placed in his hands by an East Indiana Missionary the formula of a simply vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung affections also a positive and radical cure for General Debility and all nervous complaints after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it is his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instructions for successful treatment at your own home will be received by you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self addressed envelope to

THE PREMIUM ENGRAVING for "Peterson's Magazine" for 1883, beyond all question, is the most valuable ever issued. It is a copy, in line and stipple, of the extraordinary painting by the great Hungarian artist, Muncaksy, "Christ before Pilate," which is creating such a sensation in Europe, sixty thousand persons having visited it when on exhibition at Vienna and as many at Prague. The picture is so real that the spectator seems to be actually present. The prominent object is the patient, forgiving, divine face of Christ. Then there is Pilate, with his puzzled, hesitating air; the angry hate, the scowling brows of the High Priests and Scribes; the wild, almost insane, rage of some of the crowd; and more than all, the unspeakable pathos in the countenance of the pitying mother who, with her babe in her arms, stands looking on from one corner. Never before was that ever memorable scene so vividly conceived, much less so successfully and powerfully depicted. The picture should be had in every family. It can be had, gratis, by getting up a club for "Peterson." Only the enormous circulation of the Magazine can explain why the proprietors can afford to give such premiums. "Peterson" is the best and cheapest of the lady's books, the price being but two dollars a year, with great deductions to clubs. Specimens of the Magazine, to assist in getting up clubs, are sent, gratis, if written for. Now is the time to get up clubs for 1883. Address, CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

On Monday we received the following sorrowful letter from our friend, Mr. Philip B. Stover, who left our valley several years ago with a number of others, for Kansas. Mr. Stover's letter speaks for itself, and we hope it may not plead in vain to his many relatives, friends and acquaintances in this neighborhood:

Pleasant Valley, Lincoln Co., Kansas
Nov. 1st, 1882

Mr. B. O. Deininger,

Dear Sir:—I will endeavor to write a few lines for your worthy paper if you allow me a little space, to inform you and other friends of the sad misfortune that befel us on the evening of October 30th. At about four o'clock a terrible prarie fire reached us unawares and unexpectedly. We were engaged at butchering that day and had all our outside work done. We were working at the meat and sausage in the basement of the house and did not see the calamity that was already upon us. I went outside for some water and was horrified at seeing the fire at our buildings. The manure pile was all on fire, and two hay stacks containing about 15 tons of hay, close bythe barn, and about 100 shocks of corn fodder as well as a pile of corn—all in flames. The flames struck as high as the granary. Nobody was at home but my two girls. I yelled "fire" with all my might and called for the girls and for water. I reached the granary with water just as it began to burn and succeeded to check the fire somewhat when the girls came to my help. We worked with all our might, rung the bell and called "fire" as loud as we possibly could. Everything seemed lost, but the neighbors heard our cries and saw the fire, and came to our help on horses and wagons just in time to save us from being entirely burnt out. We were almost roasted before help could come, but having abundance of water and timely help, we saved our buildings. All my feed, excepting about 3 tons of hay and a little cornfodder standing in the field, was burnt up. About 15 tons of hay, 100 shocks of fodder, 100 bushels of corn and my hog pen were all consumed, and the granary badly damaged. It was a dreadful sight to see. We worked all night to keep the fire from the buildings. I am so roasted and broken down by the terible heat that I can't do anything since. I am so nervous and my hands are so burnt that I can scarcely write. My loss is at least $200. It is very hard on me and I need help. It is not the custom here to help people when they are burnt out and I would be ever so thankful if my relatives and friends in Pennsylvania would come to my relief in this great loss. I helped others when I lived there and I feel like asking them in justice to help me now, for I need it. I had a great deal of misfortune and bad luck since I come here. I must buy my feed for the winter for my stock and money is scarce.

I will be thankful for any help which my friends in the east may generously give. I remain yours truly,
P. B. STOVER.

News Miscellany.

A Farmer in Bucks county raised 795 bushels of potatoes from an acre of ground.

Altoona expects to have her streets illuminated by the electric light before Christmas.

The mint at Philadelphia during October coined $972,000 in gold eagles; $1,000,000 in bland dollars; $71,010 in dimes; 64,500 in five cent pieces, and $32,000 in pennies.

Bishop Andrews, of Wisconsin, warns Methodist clergymen against participating in politics. He thinks that they can do more good by attending directly to the salvation of souls.

B. C. Fisher, of Troutville, Clearfield county, sought the hand of widow Grope in marriage, but was refused. He revenged himself by burning her barn a few days since. He surrendered himself at Clearfield to escape the fury of the people.

A party of young men, who gave Mr. John E. Hinnerdeer, of Dillersville, Lancaster county, a serenade of the noisy kind upon his wedding night, recently, were arrested and paid fines and costs amounting in the aggreate to $180. They assaulted the groom when he askee them to leave, and shot one of his dogs.

The newspapers have unearthed another swindler, and the farmer is the victim. This time a fellow comes along driving a shining rig, and sells carpet by the sample. He offers threeply ingrain at thirty seven and one fourth cents. The farmer selects the pattern he wants; the agent writes out the number of yards and the piece; the farmer signs the order (?) and the next week he has his note in bank to pay, and he never sees or hears of the carpet man again.

A house was burning at Oshkosh, Wis., and a woman was inside. Her husband cried, "Five thousand dollars to the man who saves her!" A fireman dashed in at great personal risk, and brought her out alive. Although the husband is very wealthy, he refused to give a dollar of the reward; but the Supreme Court decides that the offer of $5000 was valid, and that the money must be paid.

A Man Killed by an Alligator.

Mr. Sanobal, a Cuban, residing near Lake Hickpochee, discovered last week a monster alligator lying at Mud Point some sixty feet from the water and apparently asleep. Mr. Sanobal perceiving that it would be a great prize to capture the saurian, for he was fully twenty-two feet long, began building a stockade about him. He had completed the work and was putting up some braces when the alligator climed up on the stockade unnoticed, reached his tail over and struck Mr. Sanobal a fearful blow across his throat, killing him almost instantly.

INVISIBLE POISON.

HOW IT WORKS ITS WAY INTO THE BODY AND HOW TO COUNTERACT IT.

One of the great scourges of the present year in all parts of America has been malaria. This is a trouble so treacherous in its nature and so dangerous in its results as to justly cause apprehension wherever it has appeared. But there are so many erroneous ideas upon the subject that a few words are in order at a time when people are subject to malarial influences.

Malaria, which means simply bad air, is the common name of a class of diseases which arise from spores of decaying vegetable matter, thrown off from stagnant pools or piles of vegetation undergoing decomposition. These spores when inhaled with the breath or taken into the system with water soon enter the blood and germinating there find a foothold, whereby the whole system is poisoned and the various functions disordered. When the germ theory of disease was first advanced it was supposed that these spores were of animal nature, and like the bacteria in diphtheria were propagated in the blood, but they are now conceived to be of vegetable origin, like the fungi found on decaying wood or in cellars. The source of this state of the air is generally swamps or stagnant pools, which partially dried by the hot sun, send forth vapors loaded with this malarial poison. These vapors descend to the earth in the night, cooled by the loss of temperature, and breathed by sleepers are readily inhaled. Hence persons living near stagnant pools or marshes are liable to be afflicted with chills and fever, and such localities are never healthy, though they are more so when the streams flowing into them are pure, and also when the water is high. Again the drainage of houses, slaughter houses, barns, etc., are a fertile source of malaria. One will often notice in coming into the neighborhood of one of these sluggish streams that pass through almost every village a most villainous smell caused by the offensive refuse which communicates its bad odor to the atmosphere, especially on hot days. This absorbed into the system by the lungs or taken in through water, which also absorbs it from the air, poisons the blood and deranges the whole system. This poison is also developed in force in wells and springs when they become low, and the result of drinking these is the same as breathing the poisonous air. In a time of drouth the great quantity of vegetation that dries up in the meadows stubble fields and forest leaves produces the same effluvia. On the prairies when large tracts of prairie ground are turned over, the decaying vegetation is a widespread cause of malaria.

The evils which follow malarial poisoning are almost infinite. Disease of a malignant and dangerous nature, accompanied by symptoms the most distressing are certain to manifest themselves and life is a burden so long as this poison remains in the system. The indications of malarial poisoning are loss of appetite, shortness of breath, pains about the heart, wasting of flesh and strength, despondency, nervousness, chilly sensations, unaccountable lassitude, dull pains in various parts of the body, headaches, dizziness, a coated tongue and dry mouth, night sweats, muscular debility, puffing under the eyes, an unusual color, ordor or sediment about the fluids passed from the system, etc. Any one of the above symptoms may be an indication of malarial poison in the body which necessitates immediate and careful attention.

But if malarial poison could not find a lodgment in the human body, it would be just as harmless as the oxygen of the air. The great difficulty is that, after being absorbed in the stomach and lungs, clogs the circulation of the blood, affects the kidneys, liver and other organs, and brings on diseases of a most dangerous character. There is only one known way by which these diseases may be avoided or cured after they have once made their appearance, and that is by keeping the great purifying organs of the body in perfect health. These organs are the kidneys and liver. No one whose kidneys or liver are in a perfect condition was ever afflicted by malarial poison. And when these organs are disordered, they not only permit, but invite, these diseases to make their inroads into the body. It is now admitted by physicians, scientists and the majority of the general public that one medicine, and only one whose power has been tested and proven, has absolute control of, and keeps the kidneys and liver in constant health, and hence prevents malarial sickness. This remedy is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the most popular medicine before the American people, and sold by every druggist in the land. It fully counteracts the evil effect of malarial poison in the system, and not only banishes it, but restores the members which that poison has weakened. How well it does this can be learned from the following:

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 26, 1882.—Moving from the state of New York to the western country, I was attacked with malaria and general debility. I had lost all appetite and was hardly able to move about. I had tried a great many remedies but nothing bettered my condition until I began using Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver cure, which seemed to help me right away, and I feel as well as I ever have in my life. It is a blessing to people in this malarious country.

O. F. WILLIAM,
1412 Grand Ave., of William & Co., Hardware.

This grand remedy has proven its power in innumerable cases, and is to-day more extensively used in malarial districts, whether in cities or in the country, than any or all other remedies for the cure of the same class of disease. No one can afford to trifle with the first symptoms of malaria, but instant care should be taken to check it on the start before its evil influences overshadow the life.

Photographic Maps.—The advantages of the process of sun engraving upon copper, as practiced by the Austrian Military Geographical Institute, are dwelt upon in Petermann's Mittheilungen. The maps of the new Austrian ordnance map are carefully drawn on paper, on a scale of 1 to 60,000. They are then reduced photographically to a scale of 1 to 75,090, transferred upon copper, touched up, and printed. In this manner each sheet of the map can be produced in nine months, while the same amount of work, engraved in the usual manner, requires nearly 46 months for its completion. The whole of the Austrian staff map, consisting of 715 sheets, will thus be completed in 10 or 12 years. No less than 271 have been published since 1874. The advantages of this process, as regards cost and rapidity of publication, are evident, and they fully compensate for any slight interiority in the appearance of the work:

CHURCHYARD luck: "How many children have you now?" a lady asked an old servant the other day. "Fourteen," he replied. "A large family, indeed." "Yes, ma'am," said the philosophic retainer; but you see I'm not like many of my neighbors; I've never had any churchyard luck with my children—they all lived."

AGRICULTURE.

GREEN RYE AS FODDER.—In regard to the actual value of green rye used as a fodder the past season, the following facts may be considered, as given by a writer in the Times. Seven young cows in full flush of milk, having calves from 2 to 6 months old, and having no distinguishing circumstances by which a change of feed should fail to act upon the product of milk and butter with one more than another, had been fed for some time upon fifteen pounds of mixed clover and Timothy hay and common meadow hay mixed, cut, wetted and mixed with ten pounds of mixed cornmeal and wheat middlings daily. The yield had been very regularly 112 pounds of milk per day and 48 pounds of butter weekly from the whole seven cows. The rye became ready for cutting on the 10th of May, when the first heads began to appear. The daily ration was sixty pounds, part cut and wetted and mixed with the meal as before, and part fed whole, but all was eaten clean. The second week after feeding the rye the yield of milk was 168 pounds per day, and the weekly make of butter increased to sixty-five pounds. It will be seen that the fresh, green fodder while it largely added to the produce of milk, did not quite increase in proportion to the yield of butter, for while on dry feed sixteen pounds of milk made a pound of butter, eighteen pounds were required when the rye was fed. As the rye approached to blossoming and became heavier, and the weather became warmer, the ration of meal was decreased gradually until but six pounds of mixed feed were given daily, and at the present writing the yield of milk is slightly decreased, but the weekly churning has undergone no diminution.

REVIVING FRUIT TREES.—Remembering Professor Liebig's theory that when a vegetable is burned the part which came from the air in the process of its growth returns to the atmosphere, and the part which came from the ground is reduced to ashes, I came to the conclusion that ashes would be beneficial when applied to the roots of the trees. They were standing in soil strongly inclined to clay, with a turf around them that had not been removed for several years. After pruning them properly, removing every indication of worms, etc., and washing the body and branches with soapsuds, I began operations below—first removing the turf two feet around the tree; then, with a garden pick, the ground was loosened from six to twelve inches in depth, taking care not to injure the larger roots. Twenty or thirty quarts of loose dirt were removed, leaving a large cavity, shaped like a saucer, with the tree standing in the centre. About one pint of unleached ashes was sprinkled about the tree and upon this chip-manure was placed, nearly filling the cavity. Another pint of ashes was sprinkled upon the fertilizer, which was gently pressed down, and the whole covered with the loose dirt taken from the cavity, leaving the surface nearly as it was, excepting the turf. A young orchard was treated in a similar way. The effect was wonderful. Plum trees that were 'goin' to the bad' revived. Peach trees that had presented small and shriveled leaves threw out a luxuriant foliage, and cherry trees gave fruit larger and fairer than ever before.

KICKING COWS.—Take a snap-ring, attach a half-inch cord about a dozen feet in length, put the snap in the kicker's nose, draw the cord around her, letting it rest on her gambrel joints, or below. Let a person stand at her shoulder and hold the cord just tight enough that it shall not slip down to the floor. Any one can then proceed to milk her without trouble. [illegible] week, it is said, has never failed to cure the most obstinate kicker, and without any struggles or harness.

LEMONS AND ORANGES.—Usually lemons and oranges are eight to twelve years from seed before bearing in the citron groves at the South. Plants kept in pots will bear much sooner than in the open this is the result of the dwarfing, they receive by confinement of the roots. Occasional pinchings of the young shoots while growing will tend to develop flower-buds. Eight years may probably be taken as the average time required for blooming these plants in pots with the care that they ordinarily receive.

STACKING HAY.—One who claims to understand the stacking of grain and hay, says the secret of success is to tread down hard in the middle, keep it level with the outside, and not tread any there. When it settles it is the highest in the middle, and that is what is wanted. He makes all stacks low, so that one man can do the pitching easily, makes four close together; tops off with hay partly cured, and keeps it in place by wires weighted with blocks.

YOUNG sheep are sometimes affected with what, from the symptoms observable, is called the turn or the gid, a brain affection, due to the presence within the cavity of the skull of a hydatid of the tapeworm. If the young sheep be fleshy it should be promptly slaughtered. The operation of piercing the skull and destroying the hydatid is, however, sometimes performed with safety.

NITRATE OF SODA.—Used in excess this is a dangerous fertilizer, and will cause great loss in the end to farmers who are not aware that they should concurrently apply in the subsoil plenty of phosphates. It gives the crop a green and promising look, which deceives many a farmer, who gets mildew as well as color when he is expecting a healthy increase.

THE shrinkage and offal of a slaughtered steer, if the animal is fat, will be about one-third. A steer weighing 1 225 pounds should weigh after butchering 660 pounds quarters, the tallow should weigh about 80 pounds, and hide 85 pounds, making a total of 825 pounds.

A HORSE'S head ought to be as free as his feet, except that the head must be used as the guiding part. It would be just as sensible to tie and brace up his tail when he is to be tacked as to fasten the head when he is going forward. A horse of any spirit always holds his head where it ought to be when he is in motion.

THE only certain way to secure seed that will germinate is at harvest time to select a load or two, or at least a sufficient quantity for next year's setting, from the ripest or best developed portions of the field, keeping it separate from the main crop when hauling and at thrashing time.

AN English mechanic has invented a horse shoe composed of three thicknesses of cowhide compressed into a steel mould and subjected to a chemical preparation. It will last longer than the common shoe, weighs only one-fourth as much, does not split the hoofs, requires no calks and is very elastic.

NEWLY-WEANED pigs require five or six meals in the twenty-four hours. In about ten days one may be omitted; in another week a second, and then they should do with three regular meals each day.

DOMESTIC.

HOW TO MAKE A MUSTARD PLASTER.—How many people are there who really know how to make a mustard plaster? Not one in a hundred, at the most, perhaps, and yet mustard plasters are used in every family, and physicians prescribe their application, never telling anybody how to make them, for the simple reason that the doctors themselves do not know, as a rule. The ordinary way is to mix the mustard with water, tempering it with a little flour; but such a plaster as that is simply abominable. Before it is half done its work it begins to blister the patient, and leaves him finally with a painful, flayed spot, after having produced far less effect in a beneficial way than was intended. Now, a mustard plaster should never make a blister at all. If a blister is wanted, there are other plasters far better than mutsard for the purpose. When you make a mustard plaster, then use no water whatever, but mix the mustard with the white of an egg, and the result will "draw" perfectly, but will not produce a blister even upon the skin of an infant, no matter how long it is allowed to remain upon the part. For this we have the word of an old and eminent physician, as well as our own experience.

A CURE FOR NEURALGIC TOOTHACHE.—A German physician recommends powdered quinine very highly as a local application for neuralgic toothache. The sufferer should dip a finger into fresh water and then into quinine powder, and rub it thoroughly on the gum in the neighborhood of the painful tooth. The application should be repeated two or three times in succession. The bitter taste of the medicine should be borne as long as possible. Dr. Darvaris tried this remedy first on himself, and then on numerous other persons; among the number were many who had tried other remedies in vain. It invariably produced a rapid alleviation of the pain.

DRIED POTATOES.—The Commissioner of Agriculture in Georgia, Dr. Jones, suggests especially to those who have drying apparatus, that the potato sliced and dried may be a source of profit. It is well known that the dried product ground to meal, may be shipped to any climate, and will keep for an indefinite time. When properly prepared for the table, in a manner analogous to that of preparing other dried vegatables and fruit, it is scarcely inferior to the fresh potato. Enterprise in this direction would probably develop a steady demand for the dried potato for use in the army and navy of this and foreign countries.

MILK AS A PREVENTIVE OF LEAD POISONING.—The Journal de Medicine reports in a recent issue a remarkable instance of the regular consumption of milk by workmen in white lead factories. It was noticed in some French lead mills, that among a large number of workmen, two, who daily consumed a large quantity of milk, remained free from the injurious effects of the lead, which made themselves visible in many of the other hands. A daily ration of a quart of milk was then given to each of the workmen, and leadcolic soon became unknown. From 1868 to 1871, no case of colic occurred in these factories. A preventive of painters' colic, so simple and so efficacious, demands a fair trial in our own white lead factories.

CANE AND UMBRELLA STAND.—Get a section of earthen sewer pipe and stand it with the projecting point at the bottom. Paint the inside some delicate tint to harmonize with the illumination of the hall and the outside some bright rich color. Paint a black band around the top and bottom. When dry decorate the outside with some decalcomanie designs—vines, flying horses, heads—anything odd and antique. Paint a small tin basin both inside and out and stand the vase over it. These bear so close a resemblance to imported vases as almost to defy scrutiny and are far more ornamental than this imperfect description would imply.

GRAPE PICKLES.—Select small bunches of ripe, firm grapes and pack in the jars in which they are to be kept. To a quart of vinegar, add a half pound of sugar, one-fourth of a pound of stick cinnamon, and an ounce of allspice, whole. Boil, and when cold, turn over the grapes. They will keep without sealing. Stone jars, holding a gallon each, may be used for these pickles. A piece of white cotton cloth, should be spread over the clusters, and a plate placed on top, to keep them under the vinegar.

HOW TO KEEP BUTTER.—In order to keep their butter over the period of low prices and hot weather, California dairymen simply seal up their products in tin cans, sinking them to the bottom of cold streams. Butter made in April comes out in October in good order, and continues to keep fresh in the cool weather of winter. Forty-pound cans are commonly used.

COOKING AND SALTING MEAT.—Meat soaked or boiled in water loses more or less of its soluble portion, and included in this are its nutritive salts. Roasted meat, on this account, is of higher value than boiled. In the process of salting, a portion, some authorities put it as high as fifteen per cent., of the nutritive juice escapes into the brine.

MILK AS A VEHICLE FOR QUININE.—Milk is a good solvent, and effectually disguises the bitterness of this drug. One grain of quinine dissolved in an ounce of milk scarcely makes it bitter. An ounce of milk, indeed, will dissolve two grains of quinine without imparting much bitterness to its taste. When five grains are dissolved in a tumblerful of milk all bitterness disappears.

TO REMOVE GRASS STAINS FROM LINEN AND COTTON FABRICS.—Dip the stained part into kerosene oil, and rub smartly between the fingers. Then hold it in clear cold water, rubbing it all the time, and the stain will slowly disappear.

WASHINGTON PIE.—One cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, four tablespoonfuls of sweet milk, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one cup of flour. Bake in two layers with jelly, fruit or cream between.

TO PICKLE EGGS.—Boil the eggs until very hard; take off the shells; have prepared some nice spiced vinegrr, and pour hot over the eggs. They should be tied in a little muslin bag.

TO TAKE OUT SCORCH.—If a shirt bosom or any other article, has been scorched in ironing, lay it where bright sun will fall directly on it. It will take it entirely out.

To clean furs, shake and whip them well; then brush; boil some flax seed; dip a rag in the water and wipe them slightly. This makes them look almost as good as new.

HUMOROUS.

INSULT to Great Britain: Gilhooly was talking to an Englishman, who only arrived in Austin a short time ago. The recently-arrived stranger had a pug nose and was disposed to be rather dogmatic in his manner. They got into a dispute about hunting dogs, whereupon the Englishman said: "Do ye knaw who took the first prize at the London bench show?" "No, I never knaw anything.' "Well, hit was myself, ye knaw, that took the first prize at the dog show." "I don't doubt it. I might have guessed as much to look at you." After pondering over the matter the English emigrant has concluded to call the attention of the British Consul at Galveston to the matter.

How to Get Well.

Thousands of persons are constantly troubled with a combination of diseases. Diseased kidneys and costive bowels are tormentors. They should know that Kidney-Wort acts on these organs at the same time, causing them to throw off the poisons that have clogged them, and so renewing the whole man. Hundreds testify to this.—Pittsburg Post.

NAMING the baby: An Austin couple named Beezumbee were discussing what name to give their recently-arrived infant. "Let us name him after your uncle who went to Kansas last year for his health?" suggested the mother. I'd like to name the boy after him, but how are we to find out what name he goes by now," answered the author of the child's existence. Not long afterward reliable information was received that the missing uncle did not go by any name at all. He went by a number—No. 283—in the Kansas penitentiary, and the child's father naturally did not care to have the unconscious babe baptized "Number Two Hundred and Eighty-Three Beezumbee."

That poor bedridden, invalid wife, sister mother, or daughter, can be made the picture of health by a few bottles of Hop Bitters. Will you let them suffer? when so easily cured!

A PHILOSOPHER'S pie: The great scholar who acquires all his wisdom in the pent-up city falls far short of the attainment of universal knowledge. A Boston philosopher, who was passionately fond of pumpkin pie and yearned for it in vain at his boarding house, thought he would furnish the pumpkin at his own expense and accordingly strolled forth to make the necessary purchases. The next day at dinner he was surprised to receive a plaitful of pudding for his dessert and innocently asked: "Where's the pie?" "There isn't any," cooly replied the landlady; "we can't make pumpkin pie out of mock oranges."

H. H. WARNER & Co: Sirs—Your safe Kidney and Liver Cure has completely cured me of a painful kidney trouble, and I have no fear of the return of the disorder. W. P. BENNETT. 5 Dodge ave.

DEATH of George Washington: "When did George Washington die?" asked an Austin teacher of a large boy. "Is he dead?" was the astonished reply. "Why, it is not more than six months ago that they were celebrating his birthday, and now he is dead. It's a bad [illegible] him eat something that didn't agree with him."

Vegetine—When the blood becomes lifeless and stagnant, either from change of weather or of climate, want of exercise, irregular diet, or from any other cause, the Vegetine will renew the blood, carry off the putrid humors, cleanse the stomach, regulate the bowels, and impart a tone of vigor to the whole body.

NEIGHBORLY: A family of strangers moved into a house on Austin avenue next door to a family where a young lady sings operatic music. The newly arrived family sent their oldest boy over to ask if they did not want somebody to run quick for the doctor. "What for?" asked the lady of the house. "There is nobody sick here." "Well, we thought there was. We heard somebody shrieking and yelling as if they had hysterics and we thought perhaps you needed a doctor in a hurry." The musical family has not yet called on the strangers.

What is beautiful? Why, Carbolene, a deodorized extract of petroleum, as now improved and perfected. Clear as spring water, delightfully perfumed and will not soil the finest linen fabric—a perfect toilet preparation and absolutely makes the hair grow on bald heads.

A SUSPICIOUS character: A prominent Austin politician woke up his colored man a few nights ago and told him to search the house, as he was sure there was a burglar on the premises. The darkey hunted the house all over and reported as follows: "Colonel, I has hunted from top to bottom, and ef dar is any 'spishous character 'ceptin' you in de house, I can't find him."

SWEET simplicity itself: Extract from a letter written by one of the pupils at a young ladies' boarding school in Massachusetts to her father: "And lastly, dear pa, I must tell you that the young fellows in this neighborhood use bear's grease on their hair to such an extent that all the girls wear oil-silk capes. I wish you would tell ma to buy me one as soon as she can."

CONSIDERATION: "A dog," says the Hotel Mail, "should never, under any circumstances, be allowed in the dining room." Of course not. Think what a shock it would be to the poor thing's sensibilities should he suddenly recognise the remains of an old friend in the fried sausages.

Flies and Bugs.

THEIR last ice cream: "I shall be so glad when summer is over," said Violet Templeton, passing her handkerchief across her brow, as she emerged from an ice-cream saloon with Vivian Gray. "And so shall I," added Vivian, with terrible emphasis. They are still drifting toward the future, but in different boats.

Who has not seen the fair, fresh young girl transformed in a few months into the pale, haggard, dispirited woman? The sparkling eyes are dimmed, and the ringing laugh heard no more. Too often the causes are disorders of the system which Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" would remedy in a short time. Remember, that the "Favorite Prescription" will unfailingly cure all "female weaknesses," and restore health and beauty. By all druggists. Send three stamps for Dr. Pierce's treatise on Women (96 pages). Address World's Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

JUST what he wanted: Said the Denver man to his friend the clergyman: "My dear fellow, you must really let up on driving fast horses and frequenting variety shows. There's a heap of scandal floating round about you!" And the clergyman replied: "Is there? Oh joy! That's what I've been working for! I shall have some audiences now!"

The Bilious.

dyspeptic or constipated, should address, with two stamps for pamphlet, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, New York.

TIT for tat: Said a railroad engineer to an Irishman, whose cow had been killed: "But she didn't get out of the way when I rang the bell." "Faith, thin," said Pat, "ye didn't stop when she rang her bell, naythur."

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes bad, poor appetite, tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver, or "biliousness." Nothing will cure so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By all druggists.

No longer new: Sleep-walking used to be considered a strange thing, but since policemen do it and draw pay at the same time the novelty has worn off.

An Enthusiastic Endorsement.

GORHAM, N. H., JULY 14, 1879.

GENTS—Whoever you are, I don't know; but I thank the Lord and feel grateful to you to know that in this world of adulterated medicines there is one compound that proves and does all it advertises to do, and more. Four years ago I had a slight shock of palsy, which unnerved me to such an extent that the least excitement would make me shake like the ague. Last May I was induced to try Hop Bitters. I used one bottle, but did not see any change; another did so change my nerves that they are now as steady as they ever were. It used to take both hands to write, but now my good right hand writes this. Now, if you continue to manufacture as honest and good an article as you do, you will accumulate an honest fortune, and confer the greatest blessing on your fellow-men that was ever conferred on mankind.

TIM BURCH.

A TROUBLESOME belle: "Silence that dreadful belle," said Spicer, as the beauty of the hotel yowled an operatic air in the parlor.

Regulate the Secretions.

In our endeavors to preserve health it is of the utmost importance that we keep the secretory system in perfect condition. The well-known remedy Kidney-Wort, has specific action on the kidneys, liver and bowels. Use it instead of dosing with vile bitters or drastic pills. It is purely vegetable, and is prompt but mild in action. It is prepared in both dry and liquid form and sold by druggists everywhere.—Reading Eagle.

A VICTIM: Upon a modest gravestone in Vincennes Cemetery appears this legend: "His neighbor played the cornet."

Mensman's Peptonized beef tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for indigestion, dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. JOKE from Georgia: Say, for instance, a dog loses his paw, and a rooster loses his maw, does it make orphan's of them?

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS TO LIVE.

From John Kuhn, Lafayette, Ind., who announces that he is now in "perfect health," we have the following: "One year ago I was, to all appearance, in the last stages of Consumption. Our best physicians gave my case up. I finally got so low that our doctor said I could not live twenty-four hours. My friends then purchased a bottle of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, which considerably benefited me. I continued until I took nine bottles. I am now in perfect health, having used no other medicine.

NERVOUSNESS AND SLEEPLESSNESS.

The application of the Ready Relief to the part or parts where the pain or difficulty exists will afford ease and comfort.

Thirty or sixty drops in half a tumbler of water will in a few minutes cure Cramps, Sprains, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Wind in the Bowels, and all Internal Pains.

Travelers should always carry a bottle of Radway's Ready Relief with them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or pains from change of water. It is better than French Brandy or Bitters as a stimulant.
